Knowing Your Neighbour

Aruna Harjani is one of the St. Regis Jakarta's residence owners. She grew up in Manila, Philippines. She is the owner of Bolly.id, a platform for Bollywood content. Coming from a conservative family, she was brought up with values which were mandatory to be practiced.

Aruna finished her bachelor degree in Mass Communications. Her thesis won the third place at the Experimental Cinema of the Philippines in 1983. Two years later she got married and settled in Jakarta. Aruna took in a profession as a freelance journalist.

Aruna's passion for writing is not only for journalism but also for stage plays and screenplays. Her love for writing started as early as the age of ten. When she reached high school, she wrote and directed plays on class. Since she couldn't stage plays commercially Aruna used her talent in promoting philanthropy.

She wrote and directed plays and donated the profits to the needy. It also gave the opportunity for all the people involved to shine in their own ways.

“when it comes to learning, one must continue to upgrade one's knowledge”

Last year Aruna finished her Masters degree in Journalism at the Ateneo de Manila University. Aruna believes there is 'no age limit when it comes to learning, one must continue to upgrade one's knowledge'.

Aruna has four children and one grandchild. There is one motto she repeatedly tells her kids which is, “no other success can compensate for the failure at home”. For Aruna, family is an institution which has to be given first priority, she hopes that she can serve as an example for her children to follow suit.

The recent lockdown brought about revival of Aruna's passion for baking. Her mother passed a blueberry cheesecake recipe to her which she made shared with friends for thirty years.

To spend her spare time during the lockdown she started making the cheesecakes. Thanks to her daughter in law, who helped her set up the business, she was able to go full blast to start her cheesecake venture, Lady A Cheesecake (@lady.a.cheesecake). Aruna experimented on new flavors. She plans to market her cheesecake nationwide in the months to come.
